Help to keep people safe from Covid-19

Nottingham City Council and the NHS are working together to increase uptake of the Covid-19 vaccination among our diverse communities.

We want to understand why people might not get their jabs.

We are holding discussion groups to look at the main issues and barriers. We need people to take part in these discussions who come from the Black Caribbean community.

People who take part will be paid £50 in vouchers. To find out more, please email Jade Farrell at jade.farrell@nottinghamcity.gov.uk

Understanding people's attitudes to the Covid-19 vaccine

Fewer people in Nottingham have had their Covid-19 vaccination than in other parts of the country. The number of vaccinated people in our city's diverse communities is lower still.

We want to understand why. We believe vaccination offers the best defence against Covid-19 – and we want to keep people in our city safe.

Nottingham City Council and the NHS are holding a series of workshops with people from our Black Caribbean community. We want these discussions to look at the different reasons why people might not get vaccinated so we can better understand the key issues and barriers.

We would like people who attend these workshops to come from within Nottingham's Black Caribbean community where uptake is low.

People who take part will be paid £50 in vouchers. The discussion groups will last for two hours and will be held virtually on Zoom and MS Teams. Experts from the City Council and the NHS will support throughout.

If you'd like to find out more information about attending these discussion groups, please email Jade Farrell at jade.farrell@nottinghamcity.gov.uk
